

Public Health Lecture Series

Speaker: Dr Arin Basu

Senior Lecturer, Health Sciences Centre

Senior Researcher, Health Services Assessment Collaboration (HSAC)

Tuesday, March 20, 2012 — 4.30 pm

Geography Room 406

Integrating Environmental Epidemiological Study Results in Health Services - Arsenic in West Bengal

Arindam Basu is a medical doctor and an epidemiologist-health services researcher. In addition to teaching courses on research methods, he works as a senior researcher at the Health Services Assessment Collaboration (HSAC) at the University of Canterbury. Before joining Canterbury, he was working as the Associate Director of the Fogarty International Training Program in Environmental and Occupational Health at Kolkata, India. His research includes clinical medicine, environmental health, epidemiology and health services research. His interest is in inter-disciplinary linkages between health services research and environmental epidemiology.