

Mobile learning technologies

Welcome

This space has been setup after an initial meeting held on August 18, 2010 by a group interested in mobile technologies. It is to be a repository for links, information and discussion on mobile learning technologies that are already happening at UC or could be in our future. Feel free to contribute.

Comments from Arin

The meeting today was very encouraging and we are living in a very interesting time as far as emergent technology is concerned. ICT in education has come a long way. Integrating technology, databases, and apps and making them seamlessly blend with student and faculty is the next step up. I'd like on these issues later.

We have made a great beginning.
